TEXTURES

Textures can be the feel, appearance, or consistency of a surface or a substance. The tactile surface characteristics of something such as a woven wall hanging or the appearance of a textile fabric as determined by the arrangement and thickness of its threads.

Textures are everywhere – in our homes such as fabric, flooring, wallpaper; in nature such as grass, bark, the soil; in clothing, paper the list can go on and on.

Over the summer I would like you to create at least 2 textile techniques shown below linked to the theme "Textures". Remember, this work will be part of your GCSE coursework grade and every piece of work and page in your sketchbook gains you marks! Use the previous student guide booklets to help with instructions for each technique.

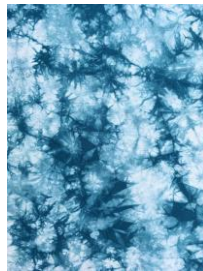

Be creative, have a lovely summer and see you all soon!
